WRITE-UMENTARY

With the start of January, I began the process of writing a Young Adult story in three parts ... yup ... a trilogy! I expect the process to take 3-6 months and am documenting my progress online. Watch word counts rise, my struggles to find time to create and my favorite line from each night's work as the story is written! "They" say anyone can write a novel ... now you can watch the process unfold! Visit my Emi Gayle website to see the progress & participate in some great little challenges with me!

ON THE ROAD TO PUBLISHED...

That trilogy has a long way to go before it can be read or even remotely attempt to be published. In the meantime, one of my manuscripts, called Little White Lies, is in the hands of a publisher! Cross your fingers for me! If it's accepted, I'm one step closer to ... published! Look for details in the Aimee Laine blog!

PHOTO CHALLENGE

Two months left. That's all I have to prepare for my big certification test! Every time I think about it, my hands sweat and I immediately find nine ways to procrastinate. Can you relate? While I am excited about this opportunity and what certification will bring, nerves seem to take center stage! Wish me luck ... please!

WHAT'S COMING...

2011 is full of possibilities: photographic, written and personal. Newsletters can only hold so much, so I encourage you to follow me on Twitter, Facebook or via my blog to see what's going on. And ... ladies ... if you want to pre-read one of my novels? Let me know.
